

BEING RELATIONAL GAZETTE

Baltimore Mediation's Newsletter & Tips

October 2019

A MESSAGE FROM OUR FOUNDER

Welcome October! After taking some time away to celebrate my daughter's wedding in Cape May, I am returning to Baltimore with a renewed sense of joy. The joy that marriage can bring to two people and those impacted by them is unparalleled. Relational framework understands the profound individual impact on a larger system. I encourage those who are contemplating marriage to consider adopting a relational mindset. Believing in each other's capacity to love and be loved, to stand strong while also being open and to cherish what a lifelong commitment means to them and those around them.

Cheers to you Paula & Michael Easton

BEING RELATIONAL:
How a Relational Worldview Can

Build a Legacy

FEATURE

Know Thyself: The Enneagram - How Personality Type Contributes to Conflict and Personal Transformation

This past month, another group of lifelong learners joined Baltimore Mediation for an afternoon of wonder and self discovery through the Enneagram. Louise walked participants through the narrative tradition of the Enneagram, an ancient personality typing system. Participants typed themselves and chose their type groups.

The types then were able to dive deeper on their personal experiences and how their type shows up in daily interactions. In this open, supportive environment, participants were able to explore practices for self awareness to identify the barriers and to nurture the gifts of their type for greater self awareness and well being.

Missed this workshop? Join us in December for our 40 Hour training with the Enneagram included! October is nearly already filled.

NEWS

Here's What a Divorce Mediation Client Had to Say:

“As my marriage proceeds forward toward divorce, I am reminded that it would not have happened as quickly and efficiently without our mediation appointment with [Louise Phipps Senft].

Your professional, kind and understanding demeanor left me feeling not one bit judged in the decision I was making to leave our relationship because ultimately we were not the best versions of ourselves together. Your services were very much appreciated.”
